KLK Clarifies Its Stand on Potential HCS Areas & New Developments

On 19 September 2014, five major growers including KLK made an announcement not to develop potential high carbon stock areas with immediate effect while the high carbon stock (“HCS”) Study they are funding is underway.

For further clarification of any doubt on the definition of “potential HCS” and the methodology to be used during the interim period, KLK’s engagement of independent third parties to identify potential HCS areas before any new development, will employ the current industry standard developed by Golden Agri Resources (GAR), The Forest Trust (TFT) and Greenpeace.
